The Efficiency of a Nation

requires that its citizens must be physically fit.

In the Golden Age of Greece, the city of Athens was supplied with ample playgrounds and gymnasia for the training of its youth.

The schools are the laboratories for future citizenship. Every American boy and girl is entitled to correct and carefully supervised bodily development as a part of his school course.

The Victrola and Victor Records furnish music which makes Physical Education more attractive, and which makes pupils more responsive in rhythmic feeling.

Have you tried these selections in your school?

Put the Liberty Loan across the Line

A Message to American Children JOSEPH LEE

If you have ever read Shakespeare's play of "As You Like It," you may remember the wrestling match in the first act and Celia saying: "I would I were invisible, that I might catch the big fellow by the leg." I suppose we have all felt that way in a football game when we have been on the side lines, wishing we could give just one push to help the ball down the field for our side. Of course that would not be fair even if we could do it in a football game, but it is fair in war. War is a contest between nations and everybody is in the game from start to finish. The Liberty Loan in fact is a way of getting other people to play the game, to put the push their money represents behind the runner. money they put into the loan is like an arm with which they reach out across the sea and give that push just at the point where it is wanted. It makes their day's work on the farm or in the office or the factory take effect upon the firing line so that every sod they dig, every blow they strike, every figure they write down, has its part in holding or advancing the line of those who are fighting for the world's liberty.

Here, in working for the Liberty Loan, is a chance where you can help the runner with the ball and perhaps give just that little extra push that will enable him to cross the line. In this greatest game that ever was played on this earth you can not only root for the home team but be a member of it, and when at last, after another year or two years, or whenever that final touchdown is scored—the biggest score ever made in history—you may be able to feel that you had your little part in it.

Not that you are then or ever to think that you have done enough. When our friends are dying for us the only limit to what we are called upon to give is all we have. We do not need to kill ourselves—indeed that would be of little use to anybody—but we should live so as to put the last ounce there is in us in the fight—and then some.

You are on the team and this is the game of your life that we are playing. It is the time to win your star, whether you get one that can be seen or not.

Playground and Recreation Association of America

Playground Facts

The compilation of facts for the 1917 Year Book has involved correspondence with approximately 1,800 cities, 1,260 of which have sent information regarding conditions relating to playground and recreation center work. Many interesting facts have been received about recreational developments in hundreds of cities but it has been possible to include in the Year Book table only those communities whose reports indicate that play leaders were employed at the playgrounds and play centers.

The War and Recreation The effect of the war on the recreation movement in the United States is a matter of great concern to all who have known the unfortunate results in the allied countries of the letting down of the bars safeguarding the physical well-being of the children and the leisure time activities of the working girl and boy. The reports received of recreational activities conducted during 1917, the first year of America's participation in the world war, are very encouraging in their indication of increased development rather than retrenchment. Of the cities discontinuing their playground work during the past summer only seven, two of which were Canadian cities, indicate that the work was abandoned because of the stress of war. In one of these cities the playground was turned over to the soldiers in the near-by training camp for recreational purposes and in still another the ground was used for drill by the men in training. In three other communities gardening was substituted for normal playground activities. The official in charge in one of these cities reports, however, that this plan was not successful and that every effort will be made to resume playground activities in 1918. The fact that 52 new cities started playground work last summer—an increase of 21.1 per cent over 1916's newly organized centers-and that at least 13 cities have since November, 1916, placed their recreation work on a permanent year-round basis with a superintendent employed the entire year, are encouraging indications of America's determination to make and keep her young people physically fit.

During the year ending November 1, 1917, the 481 cities sending reports complete enough for publication maintained 3,944 playgrounds and neighborhood recreation centers under paid leadership. At least 23 other cities sent in partial information indicating work conducted with paid leaders in charge, making a total of 504 known to have conducted work in 1917. These reports indicate an increase over 1916 of 17.8 per cent in the number of cities and 15.8 per cent in the number of centers conducted.

MANAGEMENT

Municipal

The reports received on administration and management indicate that in 291 of the 481 cities sending complete information, playground and recreation center work was administered wholly or in part by some department of the municipality; that is, 60.4 per cent of the total number of cities reporting have some form of municipal control.

In 48 cities playground and neighborhood recreation centers were maintained by Playground or Recreation Commissions; in 22, by Playground and Recreation Departments and Divisions or Boards or Bureaus of Recreation. In 108 cities School Boards conducted playground and recreation center work; in 59, Park Boards: in 9 cities, City Councils or Boards of Selectmen were in charge of the work. Other municipal departments managing recreation work were: Departments of Public Works operating in 5 cities; Department of Public Safety in one; county authorities in 7, and municipal playground committees in 8.

A number of cities reported a combination of municipal departments in the administration of the work. In 5 cities Boards of Education and Park Departments were associated; in 6, Boards of Education and Recreation Commissions and Boards; in 2, Boards of Education and the city; in one, Department of Public Welfare and the city. In 4 cities the Department of Parks and Public Property, the Boards of Education, the County Park Commission and the Recreation Commission work together in various combinations.

Private

In 48 cities playground and recreation center work was conducted by Playground and Recreation Associations and Leagues; in 17, by Civic Clubs and Associations; in 4, by Improvement Clubs; in 9, by Parent-Teachers' Associations and Home and School Leagues; in 6, by Y. M. C. A.'s; in one by the Y. W. C. A.; in 6, by Playground Committees; in 12, by Social Service Leagues, Welfare and Relief Associations and Settlements. In 10 cities industrial plants maintained the work; in 2, Chambers of Commerce or Rotary Clubs; in 5, private individuals. In 6 cities such organizations as Political Equality Leagues, Chautauqua Associations, community Bible classes and Sunday School athletic associations carried on the work while in 5 cities a combination of private organizations was responsible for the maintaining of activities.

Municipal and Private

A combination of municipal departments and private organizations was reported in a number of cities. In one community the Board of Education combined with the Recreation Committee; in 2, the Park Department and Charity Organization Society worked together; in 2 others the Park Department united with the Y. M. C. A., and with industrial and charitable institutions. In 5 cities, the Park and Playground Commissions combined with Playground Associations; in 2, municipal playground committees joined with Playground Associations and Social Service Federations. In 4 others the City Councils and other municipal departments combined with private organizations in assuming responsibility for recreation work.

ORGANIZATION

Reports which were received regarding forms of organization show a number of communities where existing Playground and Recreation Commissions are not as yet conducting work or are acting in a purely advisory capacity to sub-committees or organizations which are actively engaged in carrying on recreational activities. A study of these facts with the data on administration furnished by cities actively conducting work shows the following forms of administration:

Sources of Support

In 253 cities the playgrounds and neighborhood recreation centers were supported by municipal funds; in 109, by private funds; in 103, by both municipal and private; in 6, by county; in 5, by municipal and county. In 5 instances the sources of support were not stated.

EXPENDITURES

A total expenditure of $6,659,600.80 was reported, representing an increase over 1916's reported expenditures of $2,424,882.35. Of the total amount $3,848,084.38 was expended in 390 cities for salaries alone.

EMPLOYED WORKERS

In the 481 cities sending complete reports on playground and neighborhood center work conducted under paid leadership, 8,748 workers were employed, an increase over 1916 of 1,626 workers. Of these, 2,758 were men, 4,940 were women. In 1,050 instances the sex was not given. In addition to these workers 2,126 caretakers were employed. One hundred forty cities reported 1,454 workers employed the year-round. The reports sent by 7 of these cities, however, indicate that 29 workers were physical directors or teachers in charge of organized play in connection with the school program.

During 1917, 75 cities maintained training classes for playground workers. Of these, 50 reported 2,070 students in attendance. In addition, 11 cities reported weekly conferences of workers.

Thirty-four cities reported that their recreation positions were filled by Civil Service examinations.

PLAYGROUNDS AND NEIGHBORHOOD RECREATION CENTERS ESTAB-LISHED IN 1917

Fifty-two cities stated that playgrounds and neighborhood recreation centers were opened for the first time in 1917 under paid leadership.

BOND ISSUES

Eleven cities reported bond issues authorized in 1917. The total amount represented by these issues is $473,800.

DONATED PLAYGROUNDS

Forty-three cities reporting on donated playgrounds placed the valuation of these grounds at $420,600.

LENGTH OF PLAYGROUND TERM

One hundred thirteen cities reported 757 playgrounds and neighborhood recreation centers open the year round. In 7 of these, however, the centers reported open referred to school centers at which organized play was conducted in connection with the school program. Two thousand five hundred ninety centers were open only during the summer season.

One hundred eighty cities had their centers open on holidays; 79, on Sundays.

Eighty-nine cities reported buildings used solely for recreation purposes. Six cities reported 285 such buildings with a total average attendance in 66 cities of $360,264. The value of the recreation buildings in 45 cities was $4,670,674.

OUTLOOK FOR 1918

The passage in a number of cities of compulsory physical training laws requiring a certain amount of time for games and recreational activities, the effecting of organization, securing of funds and completion of plans for work in a number of cities which have never before had an organized program of recreation work, make the outlook for the recreation movement in 1918 an encouraging one.

The splendid response which hundreds of busy playground workers and officials have made to the requests for information regarding the recreation work in their cities, and the interest they have taken in this cooperative undertaking to further the recreation movement throughout the country augurs well for the future of the work. The year which is coming, however, with its uncertainties and readjustments will make severe demands upon the strength and devotion of the many individuals who as leaders in the movement to safeguard the birth-right of America's children must take their stand together for the continuation and enlargement of recreational facilities.

^{*}The statistics on population for cities of 8,000 inhabitants and over have been taken from the estimated population April 1, 1916 of the Census Bureau. For the remaining cities the statistics published in Hammond's Handy Atlas 1917 have been used.

†The report sent by this city indicates that the year-round centers or workers reported upon are under the jurisdiction of the Board of Education. Although in some instances playgrounds were conducted during the summer months under paid leadership, the centers open during the school year refer in the majority of cases to organized playground work in connection with the school program.

‡ In addition to the centers reported a summer camp was maintained at a cost of $10,734.69.

§ In addition to these centers a summer camp was opened in 1917.

School buildings are opened in 70 districts for citizens' meetings.

The creation of a Recreation and Playground Commission by vote of the Board of Aldermen has put the recreation work of the city on a permanent basis.

A $50,000 community house is being erected.

††The total expenditures of the Essex County Park Commission for the playgrounds maintained by it in this and other communities is approximately $22,015.

‡‡ $35,000 will be made available by the city for a recreation park and year-round work will be inaugurated.

§§ Of this number 34 workers were employed at the 15 summer, and 148 at the 56 winter recreation centers maintained by the Board of Education.

Petrus Liljedahl, to whom THE PLAYGROUND is indebted for these pictures of homemade apparatus in use on the Lincoln School playgrounds at St. Cloud, Minn., sends the following description:

Number one is a giant stride made by placing a hind wheel of a wagon on top of an Idaho cedar pole in the same way in which you would put a wheel on a wagon. Arms on top of the wheel, held in place by two clevises, pro-ject two feet beyond the rim. An eye bolt is put through the arm about inches from the end, which from the ropes are dropped to within three feet of the ground. This way of making a giant stride keeps the children far apart, the ropes seldom get tangled and it gives the children a much better swing.

"Number two is a Japanese walking pole. The four braces and the pole were cut right back of the school in an oak forest. The pole is suspended be eye bolts and chains. No child to my knowledge has yet been able to walk the length of the pole without falling off. "N um ber three is a 'flying Dutch-man or mery-go-round. The center post is cased in and a circular track, which is nothing more than the rim of a wheel, is piaced so as to be about a quarter of an inch above the floor. Under the board and directly above the track on either side are two rollers which make the board whirl easily. The board is three inches can carry as many as can ctimb on. The beauty about this

'flying Dutchman' is that the board cannot tip and if properly oiled will spin very easily. It is very popular."
